Since they require less time to read, they are an easy way to expose your students to new authors and genres. In addition, the best stories are equally engaging and significant as the best novels. We asked our audience on Facebook and Instagram to share some of their favorite stories for middle schools. Here is the big list! If you are looking for other stories, take a look at these tips compiled by the Seattle public library, The Short Story Guide and Barnes & Noble. In addition, we love these anthologies: a thousand beginnings and finals compiled by We Need Ellen of Ellen Oh and Elsie Chapman, and meet Carni: some people are destined to meet Sona Charaipotra, Dhonielle Clayton, Nicola Yoon, Ibi Zoboi, et al. I also miss our list of favorite middle school poems. Do you want more articles like this? Make sure you subscribe to our newsletters! Jose takes the understanding that there will always be people in the world like Arnie, but he will, be as his father, a born worker. Read the story here: Born Worker 7. The redemption of the red leader in this fun story of O. Henry, two vagabonds, Sam and Bill, plan to kidnap a boy in a small city and keep him for the redemption. Their plan turns back when the boy, Johnny Dorset, becomes a total behavioral problem that both men cannot manage. Men try to return it without being caught, but they have more problems when they implement their plan. Find it here: The Ransom of Red Chief here is a flip book that you might like to use with this story: The Ransom of Red Chief Flip Book-Alline for the common nucleus 8. For the whole summer in a day Margot is different because © is from the earth, unlike his schoolmates on Venus. They are jealous of her experiences passed by her, in particular her memories of the sun. After seven years of solid rain, when the sun is about to make a rare apparition to Venus, students punish Margot with a cruel act of bullying. Read the story here: all summer in a day 9. The monsters are scheduled in Maple Street, this is a Teleplay - an episode of the Rod Serling Twilight area. The neighbors fear that the aliens landed when a bright flash appears in the sky and strange things begin to happen. Incited by a boy's stories, people accuse themselves of being an alien sent in advance. Panic and a scene of the crowd leave the readers who wonder who the real monsters are. Excellent for involving students in a dramatic reading aloud!
